Corn Starch Tableware

Material Source

Cornstarch tableware is derived from renewable resources like corn starch, sugarcane, or cassava. The starch is fermented to extract glucose, which is then processed into polylactic acid through polymerization. This makes the material eco-friendly, plant-based, and carbon-neutral compared to traditional plastics.

Heat Resistance

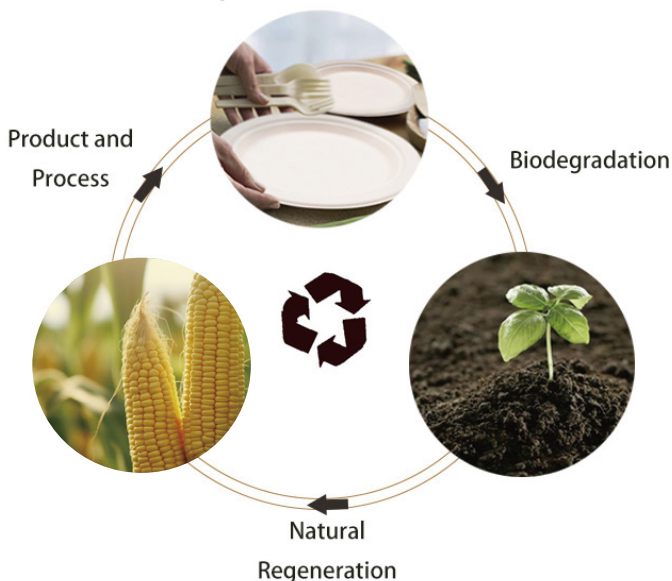

Cornstarch-based tableware can withstand temperatures of up to 40–85°C (104–185°F) for short-term use

Not Suitable for

Oven use, direct flame, or frying (unlike petroleum-based plastics like PP or PET).

Biodegradability & Compostability

Fully decomposes under controlled composting conditions (50–60°C, high humidity) within 90–180 days.

Material Source

Polylactic acid or polylactide (PLA) is a polyester made from renewable resources such as corn starch, sugarcane, or cassava. As a plant-based plastic, it offers an eco-friendly alternative to traditional petroleum-based plastics.

Biodegradability

PLA is compostable under industrial conditions, breaking down into natural components like water and carbon dioxide.

Heat Resistance

PLA has a relatively low heat resistance compared to other plastics. Its glass transition temperature is around 60°C (140°F), and its melting point is approximately 150-160°C (302-320°F).

Secure Fit

The lid is designed to fit snugly on the cup, preventing spills and leaks, making it ideal for on-the-go use.

Drink Opening

The lid features a convenient drink opening, allowing for easy sipping without the need to remove the lid entirely.

Durability

The cup is sturdy and can hold both hot and cold beverages without deforming or leaking.

Customizable

The cup can be easily printed with logos or designs, offering branding opportunities for businesses.

Material Source

PET is a thermoplastic polymer derived from petroleum-based raw materials, primarily ethylene glycol and terephthalic acid (or dimethyl terephthalate). It is widely recyclable and increasingly produced using bio-based alternatives to reduce environmental impact.

Heat Resistance

PET has a relatively low heat resistance, typically up to 120–150°C (248–302°F) for short-term exposure; prolonged heat may cause deformation.

Tamper-Evident & Secure Design

One-time-use locks, perforated openings, shrink bands show visible signs if opened.

Applications

Prevents in-store theft of high-end chocolates, supplements, or ready-to-eat meals. Secures meal kits or gourmet items during transit.
